THE ENGLISH LAW OF DIVORCE.

THE ROYAL COMMISSION.

The following are further extracts from the evidence given recently before the Royal Commission on Divorce in London.

Answering a question as to the proportion of unfounded cases, Sir John Bigham said each sitting started with about 180 or 200 unfounded cases, and they were all disposed of during the sittings. There would be six or seven hundred a year, if not more, because during sittings there was very often a supplemental list, so that during a sitting they not only disposed of the list which was ready, but also a number of cases which had been put down during the sittings. So that perhaps during the sittings they might dispose of 150 unfounded cases. There was, perhaps, a little difficulty about defended cases. Out of a list of 10 cases of which sittings, some would be probable cases, and perhaps 60 would be divorce cases. In addition to this, there were the special jury and the common jury sittings, and he would think that they would add another 25 to the defended list each sitting. That would make 85 defended sittings to be disposed of during each sitting.

The President: The undefended cases are mostly among the poorer classes of life? Sir John Bigham: Yes, but if you mean that it is the poorer class which resort to the courts more than the rich, I don't think that is true.

DECREE IN FIFTEEN MINUTES. I only mean that they are not high-class cases?—No, they are squalid and repulsive. He added that they were disposed of at the rate of 300 a day, or one every quarter of an hour.

The President: It has been suggested that the misconduct of the petitioner should not be a bar. If that were so, you think it would tend to remove the present desire of petitioners to keep back the facts?

A STRONG OPINION. Sir John Bigham: I have a strong opinion, which may shock some people, but misconduct ought not to deprive, except in serious cases, either the husband or the wife from getting relief.

That is in accordance with French law? I don't know about the French law, but it is quite in accordance with my views as to what is best for morals. But the misconduct must be either exceptional or of a slight character. I would not give relief to a man who habitually lived in open misconduct, but, looking at it from the man's point of view, he did not think that, in the course of 20 years life, if a man had once made a slip that that ought to take away his right to separate himself from a dissolute and bad living woman. If at present, or at all events it was a serious obstacle.

Witness agreed that if parties were put in such a position that they might safely disclose everything, the concealment would be largely obliterated. On the question of a legal separation of man and wife, Sir John Bigham said he had seen several London stipendiary magistrates, and his impression was that the Act was admirably worked in London, with a desire to keep husband and wife together as far as possible, and he was sure that that ought to be the aim of the magistrates dealing with these cases. He thought that poor people were visited by a great misfortune when their homes were broken up. These proceedings were instituted very often by angry women—no doubt angry with a cause—and the orders obtained were attended with disastrous consequences, which the women themselves did not foresee. The husband left the home, and the children were left without a father. That state of things conducted to immorality. The father went away and found another woman, and the mother, in all probability, found another man, and therefore he thought the magistrate ought to hesitate a long time before separating man and wife. Any change ought to be in the way of making separation more difficult than at present.

PUBLICITY DESIRABLE. The Chairman asked the witness his views in regard to reports of cases.

Sir John Bigham: I never see the papers which offend in this direction. My newspapers all respectable newspapers. But there are newspapers—especially the Sunday newspaper which do offend, so I am told. I was told by the proprietor of one well-known Sunday newspaper, that if his paper did not publish what was called "spicy details" he had complaints from his agents all over the country that the rival papers had them in, and that, in consequence, the sale of his paper had suffered. I have no doubt these improper details are put in in order to sell the newspapers.

Do you think publicity desirable?—I have a very strong opinion that it would be very undesirable to suppress reports, and I say so because of the anxiety that I know exists among the litigants themselves to keep the cases out of the papers. That anxiety convinces me that the fear of publicity helps to keep people straight.

You think that it would be in the interests of the children of the marriage?—I think so. It is in the interests of the public generally.

Have you had any suggestion of improper use of the fact that there is publicity?—No, I have never heard of it.

Then as to the question of change of grounds of divorce?—The principal propositions, as I understand it, is that there should be equality, that is to say, that the husband's misconduct be a sufficient cause of itself to entitle the wife to a divorce, as it is in the case of the husband with the wife. I do not believe—and here again I am speaking on a subject I don't care much to speak about in public—I do not think that an act of adultery on the part of a man has anything like the same significance as such an act on the part of a woman. Most men, I think all men, know it perfectly well. An act on the part of a man may be more or less accidental. It does not diminish—very frequently, at all events, and I am not talking of continuous misconduct—it is not inconsistent with his continued esteem and love for his wife. Some people, witness added, might say it was, but he did not agree. On the other hand, an act of misconduct on the part of a woman was, in his opinion, quite inconsistent with continued love and esteem for her husband.

Would you make any difference if the husband's act were continuous?—Yes, if it were continuous, and accompanied by indignity to the wife. Sir John added that he knew of cases where the husband brought into his house the woman with whom he committed misconduct; in that case his conduct was execrable, and the wife should be entitled to a divorce.

TWO ESTABLISHMENTS. Take the case of a man who keeps two establishments. There is no indignity upon the wife?—If a man keep a double establishment he would make his misconduct continuous. I think the wife ought to have a divorce for that.

In reply to further questions, Sir John Bigham said that if a man deserted his wife in such circumstances as to convince the court that he intended never to come back, there should be relief by divorce. In the case of a man who was sentenced to a term of imprisonment which practically amounted to separation for life, the wife should be entitled to relief. He did not think that it occurred shortly after marriage, and was shown to be permanent. If a couple's early married life had been passed in the ordinary way, the fact that, at the end of fifteen years, one of them became insane, ought not to be a ground for divorce. Habitual drunkenness he regarded as a species of insanity.

Mr. Kulus Isaacs: Suppose a woman establishes that her husband leaves her at times and commits misconduct, not involving any indignity upon her, and she does not wish to continue to live with her husband, is it right they should be kept together?

Sir John Bigham: It is a question of degree. The point you take is that a man is committing more or less continuous misconduct, and that the wife knows of it. This would, in my opinion, justify asking for a divorce.

THE "WISE WIFE'S" COURSE. Suppose as a result of an isolated act a child was born, should that entitle the wife to divorce?—No, not in the bald way you have put it. I do not think the fact that a child comes into the world should justify divorce. A wise wife, in my opinion, shuts her eyes to her husband's mistakes.

In the case of the wife, any act of misconduct would entitle the husband to divorce her?—Except an act which is conducted to, as it sometimes is, by the misconduct of the husband.

On the question of crime being a reason for divorce, Sir John Bigham said he had no idea that in some cases, supposing a man had a sentence of five years' penal servitude, it would be a most cruel thing for him to know that the consequences of his crime included the fact that he was to lose his wife. He (Sir John) did not like the idea of it at all. But where the term of imprisonment was so long that the woman—being a young woman—could not have children or live the life of an ordinary woman of the world, then he would say she should be entitled to a divorce.

Mr. Rufus Isaacs: I suggest that the remedy of judicial separation is worth very little.

Sir John Bigham: It gives a wife the right to live apart from her husband, and to get from him support and the custody of the children. But the right to live apart, irrespective of an order upon him for alimony, she always has. There is no law which compels a woman to live with her husband. But there could be a husband's suit for the restitution of conjugal rights.

DRINK AND DIVORCE. Answering Sir George White, the witness said that if they could get rid of drink the doors of divorce courts might almost be closed.

Answering the Archbishop of York, Sir John said he had doubts about the desirability of divorce.

The Archbishop of York: You say you think it might be possible to grant divorce in the case of crime where there was a long sentence. Do you think the mere record of the sentence should be sufficient for divorce?

Sir John Bigham: No. All the circumstances should be gone into. I think it would be in many cases a cruel thing to add to a man's punishment the parting from his wife and his children.

Answering further questions by the Archbishop, Sir John said he did not believe in a man or a woman being chained to a lunatic, but this, and the question of what constituted habitual drunkenness as a ground for divorce, must be left to the discretion of the tribunal. These things increased the burden thrown upon the discretionary powers of the court, and made it more necessary that the causes should be tried at one centre, and not in 55 or 56 different tribunals.

The Archbishop: The principle which has hitherto governed the selection of the grounds of divorce has been the Christian principle that the adultery is the only ground for divorce. You leave the principle on one side?

Sir John Bigham: I do. I do not look at it from a religious point of view at all.

At this point Sir John said it was necessary for him to leave in order to attend a funeral. His further examination was therefore postponed until Monday.

The inquiry was adjourned.

MOTHERS SHOULD KNOW.

The troubles with multitudes of girls is a want of proper nourishment and enough of it. Now-a-days they call this condition by the learned name of Anemia. But words change no facts. There are thousands of girls of this kind anywhere between childhood and young ladyhood. Disease finds most of its victims among them. They are too weak and frail to resist. Some of them are passing through the mysterious changes which lead up to maturity and need especial watchfulness and care. Alas, how many break down at this critical period; the story of such losses is the saddest in the history of home. The proper treatment might have saved most of these household treasures, if the mothers had only known of and given it to their daughters, they would have grown to be strong and healthy women. It is palatable as honey and contains all the nutritive and curative properties of Pure Cod Liver Oil, extracted by us from fresh cod livers, combined with the Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites and the Extracts of Malt and Wild Cherry. In building up pale, puny, emaciated children, particularly those troubled with Anemia, Scrofula, Rickets, and Bone and Blood diseases, nothing equals it; its tonic qualities are of the highest order. A Medical Institution says: "We have used your preparation in treating children for coughs, colds and inflammation; its application has never failed us in any case, even the most aggravated bordering on anæmia. The children like it, and it builds up their bodies; many little children owe their lives to it." The more it is used the less will be the ravages of disease from infancy to old age. It is both a food and a medicine—modern, scientific, and effective from the first dose. It never deceives or disappoints, and is the medicinal triumph of our time. "There is no doubt about it." BEER AND BITTER.

One of the principal arguments adduced by those antagonistic to the anti-opium propaganda has been the suggestion that deprived of their—shall we say—natural solace in the shape of opium they will turn to those infernal compounds of raw spirit which abound in the Far East. Every European who has been accustomed to take a "peg" occasionally knows the vile character of some of the decoctions which pass muster as whisky or brandy and for that reason most Occidentals who have any respect for themselves refuse to frequent the shady dens where powered charmers seduce their wits to the destruction of their "internal economy," and, when they feel so inclined, patronise the principal hotels. Most Europeans also are well aware that the Chinese are adepts at the art of abstracting the contents of a genuine bottle of recognised brand and substituting for it a marvellous preparation of their own whose property is to make intoxication quick and sudden. But, curiously enough those very Chinamen who pander to this nefarious trade, are the last to indulge in the stuff they dispense. Possibly they are in the same category as those who engaged in the manufacture of jam refuse to taste jam or those in the sale of sweets refuse to look at sweets. Possibly not and probably not. The Chinaman who will religiously sell any liquor that has been fermented at a price which will return him two or three hundred per cent. profit likes in his off moments to the consolation of his opium pipe from which he suffers little or no apparent evil. When that pipe has been withheld by "Act of Parliament" in what direction will he turn? Will he become a paragon of virtue and self-denial, an example to the nations, a plaster saint—or will he turn to the gods of his western regenerators? Of course it is a well known fact that some time in the very near future we are all to be rabid, avowed and bigoted abstainers from every thing which contains the smallest percentage of humanity's curse, but at the present time the majority of mankind have a pendant for a passing glass of beer and why it should be thought that the Chinese are better than those who pretend to be their betters we cannot understand. Nevertheless, if we read the speeches of the anti-opiumists aright, the Chinese are of such superior calibre that once they have lost their inclination for a casual whiff of a casual pipe of opium dross they are to elevate themselves on pedestals of brass and become the envy of all mankind. It is almost inconceivable that there are people in the world who can entertain such nonsense. We must look facts in the face, and whether we lament indulgence in spirituous liquors or not we cannot but recognise that the natural tendency is to turn to some form of relaxation which is neither all vice nor all virtue. For centuries now the Chinese have been addicted to the opium pipe. Their officials and literati, which is the same thing, have had their consultations over a cup of tea and an opium pipe, and yet the intellects of the present generation are as keen as ever, acute enough at all events to discomfit the machinations of foreign adversaries. Is it better then that they should be allowed to indulge mildly in that form of dissipation which has called down the thunder of the wise men of the West or should they be hurried hot foot to the quicksands of raw alcohol? It is a well known fact that spirits exercise a more potent effect on Asiatics than on Europeans although the tectotal brigade may not think so. A correspondent in the Times, however, brings to notice a paragraph which we had overlooked and which should give pause to those who are anxious for the salvation of the Chinaman's soul. He writes: "In looking through the Straits Settlements Government Gazette, published by authority, dated Singapore, January 14, 1910, Vol. 45, I stumbled across the following paragraph, No. 6 at page 24, in the supplement, which contains the Straits Settlements medical report for the year 1908:—'Lunatic Asylum.—6.—The occurrence of cases of alcoholic insanity among Chinese is increasing. Besides the ordinary forms we are having cases sent us that remain acutely maniacal from one to six weeks and then recover rapidly, and these are not cases of delirium tremens. All give the history of non-addiction to alcohol, a big burst in town, where they drank the common trade brandy to unconsciousness, and a recovery of their senses in the lunatic asylum. Four out of five recent cases recovered within ten days, and the fifth in six weeks. The changeable hallucinatory symptoms, the intense fear, the nocturnal exacerbations, obvious signs of delirium tremens, were wanting in these cases. 'Three had grandiose delusions, two suffered from delusions of persecution not strongly pronounced, one was verging on dementia, and but one was in any way violent or markedly excitable. As the brandy they had consumed probably cost about 1s. a bottle, it is possible that it contained either poison or poisons than is usually contained in good sound spirits. What the finale of the present agitation as to the consumption of opium in Asia will be is yet to be learnt, but if cheap alcohol takes its place I dread to imagine the results. This is interesting reading, and doubtless the experience throughout China will be to a great extent similar, though official machinery for recording results is more or less non-existent.'"

Seldom have we read a more serious indictment. But we fear it is only the precursor of others still more defamatory if the native instinct for the opium pipe is denied.

EXPERIMENTAL PLANTATION IN HONGKONG.

("penal" by the "Hongkong Telegraph.")

Whilst our local investors are feverishly studying the market prices in rubber, estate shares, and speculating on the rise or prospective rise of Anglo-Malays, Lukit Rajahs, Vallambros, Golden Hopes, United Serdangs, Langkats, Gleneslys or any one or other of the well known plantations in Malaya, it remains a peculiar fact that to the ordinary man a rubber plantation has as hazy an existence as the inaccessible fast to the Huntepunter who puts his "bob" on the outside chance and yet never was inside an enclosure within the meaning of the Act. The latter gets his information about the form of rubber trees from the betting lists and his evening paper. In the same way the painter on rubber shares gleams his knowledge of the state of the market from London and local quotations without, in many cases, having any other clue than that he is

BACKING THE FAVOURITE.

As in racing, so in rubber, the backer does not stop to consider that he may be laying very long odds on; the only point that does count with him in general, is that he is on the favourite who at 100 chances to 1 too must inevitably win.

Without going into a discussion of the causes and effects of the abnormal rise which has taken place of recent months in the rating of the rubber world—which is not the object of this article—it is only needful to hint that there is always danger in "booms" and without being sententious one might add there is an immutable law which says that reaction must follow periods of great activity, as the night follows the day. What has been written does not so much apply to the old-established rubber businesses of Malaya as to the many wild-cat schemes which the rubber frenzy is producing in London with unlimited support forthcoming from Hongkong and other financial centres where there is always a more or less copious supply of ready for placing in any specious enterprise. That the rubber market may be well maintained for the next three years or so—as to all appearances it will—is ardently to be hoped for, for the sake of the small investor who has staked his little all in one throw and at such prices as can bring him in only a very meagre return on his invested money.

But if Hongkong commercial enterprises are being neglected and local capital deflected from those projects for which it was formerly obtainable, the rubber planting industry goes merely on in the Federated Malay States and is also fading fresh footing in British North Borneo and the Dutch a chipelago. Even the small island of Singapore can boast of its rubber plantations and, by the way, it may be mentioned that the growing of rubber has been essayed even on our own island of Hongkong. The experimental tract chosen is said to have been a moist little valley in the neighbourhood of Aberdeen and of the results no record has been divulged nor is it likely that any advantageous crops could be grown in this latitude unless we were blessed—or cursed—with a

PERPETUAL SUMMER.

It was the lot of the writer to take a trip over the Malayan planting country more than half a year ago before the rubber industry had emerged from that severe cloud of depression under which it had fallen. Staffs were being reduced; there was a stoppage more or less in the clearing of new forest land; and economy was being practised in the most rigid manner on every hand.

The older estates were, so to speak, standing on their own feet; and their virgin acres of reserve were left untouched pending a liveness of the market. Only on the new estates which had quite recently been capitalised was there anything doing, for of course, there were working on a subscribed capital basis and the work therefore went on irrespective of the state of the market and on a purely speculative understanding.

It is only when one has traversed the lands of Malaya that one realises the enormity to which the rubber industry has grown in that country, producing as it does saplings waving their verdant, world's supply of cultivated rubber. Within recent times the whole of the Malay Peninsula has been connected up by rail; and it is now possible to travel right through the length of the land by steam from

SINGAPORE TO PENANG.

All along the line one sees evidences of the cultivation of the rubber tree. Vast tracts of virgin forest have been cleared for the reception of the young shoots which are by and by to yield this staple almost worth its weight in silver.

When land is first taken over by the planter it is generally covered by the dense jungle and giant forest which covers Malaya almost throughout its entire length and breadth. This has to be cut and felled and burned. In many cases the young rubber shoots are put in, one might almost say, before the resultant ashes have time to fall. The spectacle is quite common of the tiny green saplings waving their diminutive leaves above the charred remains of those forest leviathans whose places they have usurped and who now help to provide them with the sustenance necessary to their growth. In the clearing of the land lies the most arduous part of the planter's work. As soon as one tract has been cleared and planted up, he moves on to a other piece of land, and so on year by year the estate gradually presenting trees of all grades of growth and bearing. But if the most arduous part of his task ceases with the clearing of the land, the planter's work is by no means over.

The young trees require most careful attention, especially at their infant stage of development. Squads of coolies—mostly Tamils and Javaneses—are kept constantly at work among the plants weeding out the rank jungle growth which thrives on the rich black soil and destroying white ants and other destructive insects which make the rubber trees their forage. Trees are sometimes tapped at as early as age as three years, but this is decidedly harmful to their after-growth. The age of full bearing is generally put at seven years. As has been shown, there must always be on an estate trees of varying ages, dating from the time when the first acre of the estate was cleared and planted up, so that even when the plantation is bearing rubber to its full capacity the planter has his work cut out for him from day to day without cessation.

AN OLD CHINA HAND.

DEATH OF MR. PHILIPP ARNHOLD.

It is announced to-day that the death occurred yesterday, in London, of Mr. Philipp Arnhold, the senior partner of the well-known Hongkong firm of Messrs. Arnhold, Karberg & Co. The news of his death was received here with profound grief, both on the part of the members and staff of the firm and of the many friends whom the late gentleman had in this Colony. Death was due to heart failure. Deceased was only a little over 60 years of age, so that his friends have every reason to regret his untimely end. When he left the East for Europe he was hale and hearty and gave every promise that he would live for many more years to assist in the direction of the firm's interests at home.

Coming out from Europe as a young man in his twenties, Mr. Philipp Arnhold in 1868 joined the firm of Messrs. Oxford & Co. of Canton, an old established business which has passed out of existence in the flux of time. Mr. Arnhold's commercial acumen soon led him to see the possibilities that the China trade offered and a few years after he had been settled here he was followed by his brother, Mr. Jacob Arnhold, who came out to Hongkong and established the merchant firm of Messrs. Arnhold, Karberg & Co.

Upon the establishment of this business, the late Mr. Philipp Arnhold joined in company with his brother, Mr. Jacob. For several years he remained in Hongkong, and so successful were the firm's operations locally that it was determined to found a branch in Shanghai. To carry out this important undertaking Mr. Philipp went to the northern port and there he remained until about 1902. The greater part of his business life in the East, therefore, was passed in Shanghai, but in Hongkong as well as in the Model Settlement he made many friends during his sojourn and commanded the respect of all who knew him. In Shanghai, Mr. Arnhold did not participate much in municipal matters although he took a keen interest in all that pertained to the welfare of the place. It might be said that he lived a plain business man's life, devoid of ostentation and rejoicing in his work. He was a director of the Soy Chee Spinning Company and of various other local companies.

In 1902, Mr. Arnhold went to London to join his brother, Mr. Jacob, the head of the firm, in the management of the headquarter office. In the following year Mr. Philipp took this place as senior partner, in which capacity he acted up till the time of his death. Mr. E. Goetz now assumes the senior partnership.

INTERPORT GOLF.

SHANGHAI & HONGKONG.

The Shanghai Times of 25th March says:—To-day sees the start of one of the most interesting golf tournaments that have ever taken place in China. It will open with the competition for the Shanghai Challenge Cup at ten o'clock when teams representing Shanghai and Hongkong will compete. It may be remembered that at the last annual meeting of the Golf Club a sum of about a thousand dollars was voted for the purpose of giving up a trophy to be competed for by teams representing clubs in the Far East. Invitations were extended to all the clubs in China, and Hongkong, but only the Hongkong Royal was able to accept, and there are now four members in Shanghai representing this club, namely, Messrs. Forrest Anton, Monteith, and Burnie. The three best scores out of the four will count towards the cup, and the Shanghai scores will be in the hands of Messrs. T. F. Longmuir, J. B. Ferrier, G. M. Wheelock, J. Dewar, and A. R. W. Mezzies. Starting at ten o'clock it is possible that the cup will be lost; and won before the day is out, but if the competition is not concluded by evening it will be continued on Saturday.

It was originally intended to devote Monday to competing for the Championship of the Far East, but it is possible that this may take place on Sunday. In addition to the names already mentioned as taking part in the contest for the Shanghai Challenge Cup it is understood that Captain Barrett and probably one or two other prominent golfers will participate. Following upon this, on Monday night, a golf dinner will take place.

While it has been to some extent a disappointment that only Hongkong has been able to send a team, there is some satisfaction in knowing that here in Shanghai is gathered a group of undoubtedly the most golfers in the Far East. Forrest of Hongkong is understood to be one of the best exponents of the game known in the East, while Longmuir, Ferrier, and Wheelock of Shanghai have all championships to their credit.

TELEGRAMS from Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, state that forty municipal councillors and ex-councillors have been indicted for bribery. They include physicians, property-owners and politicians. Several of the accused persons are said to have confessed to implication.

BIDDING was good at the last stamp sale by Ventum, Bull and Cooper, the following being some of the prices:—Straits Settlements, 1863, provincial, "8 cents" in red and large "8" in red on 12c. brown-purple, unused, $3.10; Selangor, 1895/98, $3.50 green and orange, mint, $2.14; Federated Malay States, 1900, $3.50 green and orange, mint, $2.8. A Spain, Philippine Islands, 1869-74 overprinted "Habillado Por La Nacion," a real blue, scarce, fetched $2.

AMERICAN legislators are, it is suggested, to be won for the cause of Woman Suffrage by kisses. "There is not a man in America," said Mrs. A. W. Powell at a public meeting in New York, "whose vote cannot be bought for a kiss. If the suffrage party would only delegate some pretty girl to attempt the conversion of each member of the Legislature, the women of New York would get the vote without another effort. As the worst it would be merely a slight sacrifice of personal dignity."

THE HASTINGS CASE.

TRIAL COMMENCED BEFORE A SPECIAL JURY.

Before Hon. Mr. W. Ross-Davies, K.C., Acting Chief Justice, and a special jury at the Criminal Sessions this morning, Lam Fok Chiu, alias Chung Yau Li, was indicted on the following three counts:—(1) Conspiring on May 1st, 1909, with others with intent to defraud any person; (2) conspiring with others with intent to defraud Mr. John Hastings; (3) obtaining two cheques of $9,000 and $5,000, respectively, from Mr. John Hastings on the 9th September, 1909, under false pretences, to wit, the production of a forged Crown lease. Mr. M. W. Slade, K.C., instructed by Mr. F. B. L. Bowley, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted and Mr. C. G. Alabaster, instructed by Mr. W. E. L. Shenton, of Messrs. Deacon, Lockyer and Deacon, appeared for the defendant, who entered a plea of not guilty on all the three counts.

The following were the jury:—Messrs. C. G. Gok (foreman), J. Gibbs, G. F. G. Grimble, C. Montague Edge, J. T. Douglas, A. O'D. Gordon and H. Pickney.

Mr. Slade, in opening, said that prisoner was charged under three counts. The first two counts were charges of conspiracy while the third count was one of felony, that of obtaining money by means of a forged deed. There was a comparatively slight difference between the first two counts, which was one of legal technicality. Under the first count, the prisoner was charged with attempting to defraud any person who was in a position to lend him money; under that count was included an unsuccessful attempt to defraud. The second count charged the prisoner with successful conspiracy. The third count was one of obtaining from Mr. John Hastings the sum of $24,000 under false pretences. That was the gist of the charges. He proposed to outline the case as briefly as possible, as that would give the jury a broader idea of the nature of the charges. As long back as 1878, a very well-known local firm, the Yuen Fat Hong firm of rice-dealers, purchased property consisting of Nos. 1 to 5, Ke. Ling Lane. The purchase was effected under the name of the principal partner of the firm, whose name was Ko Ma Wa. In somewhere about 1889, when the Reclamation scheme was going through, Government started to change Marine Lots, which had ceased to be Marine Lots just before the big Reclamation scheme was put through, into Inland Lots and to get owners of Marine Lots to surrender their leases and to receive in place of them leases of Inland Lots. In pursuance of that scheme, Government had prepared a number of Crown leases. The land was surveyed, new Crown lots were prepared and the seal of the Colony was impressed on the documents and all else that was needed was the date and signature of the issuing Land Officer. These spates were left blank. From the date it had been drawn up the lease relating to the particular property known as Marine Lot 97 purchased by Ko Ma Wa was partially filled up. It was never executed and the lease remained in the store-room or in one of the safes in the Land Office. Somebody—it was not known who—got the lease, on which he forged the name of Bruce Shepherd and on the counterpane forged the name of Ko Ma Wa. The man who was responsible for the forgery must have been one of the clerks in the Land Office; for nobody else could have gained access to the document. In the new Register, the name of Inland Lot 1272 was left blank, because there was no entry in the corresponding books. The ingenious person of the Land Office then took the particular folio and erased the figures 1272 and in place of them wrote 1272. Opposite Inland Lot 1272 there was a blank in the index which the man filled up, so that anybody who turned over the particular folio would not think for one moment that it was otherwise than bona fide. Having made the entry, he wrote under it Ko Ma Wa, owner of Inland Lot 1272. No lease had been registered but Ko Ma Wa had apparently a complete title. Having done that the only other thing required was to raise money on the Crown lease and on the 6th May, prisoner took the lease to Mr. Otto Kong Sing and asked whether he could get a loan on the security of the property. Mr. Kong Sing heard that a client of Messrs. d'Almada and Smith, solicitors, was willing to lend money and got into communication with Messrs. d'Almada and Smith. He sent the Crown lease to Messrs. d'Almada and Smith, who found that the lease looked all right. Messrs. d'Almada and Smith searched the Land Register and found that the property had a clean title. But Messrs. d'Almada and Smith were not satisfied with Ko Ma Wa's identity. They were not satisfied with the entry of Ko Ma Wa. They wanted Ko Ma Wa to be identified with a view to being satisfied that he was not some rascally person who wished to defraud their client. They had not the slightest doubt that the Crown lease was perfectly genuine. They were given the name of Wong Wing Fat, of 43, Des Voeux Road. Messrs. d'Almada and Smith wrote to Wong Wing Fat and the chit-book in which the letter was sent was returned with the signature "Wing Fat." Some time after a man gave certain information about the alleged Ko Ma Wa, who as a matter of fact had been dead for several years. Messrs. d'Almada and Smith did not think the identification was sufficiently good to advise their client to lend money. Now what was defendant's connection with that incident? There was nothing to prove that he went either to the Land Office or Messrs. d'Almada and Smith, but the address of Wong Wing Fat given as 43, Des Voeux Road was not the address of Wong Wing Fat. He never lived there at all in his life and as a matter of fact he was not in the Colony at the time but it was the address of the defendant. That was the only thing to connect defendant with the first half of the conspiracy. That scheme having failed, the conspirators lay low for some time until somebody conceived the brilliant idea of making out a false assignment. On this the conspirators obviously counted, for they found out that Messrs. Hastings and Hastings had clients who were willing to lend money on the particular property under a bogus purchase. An agreement was made out for the sale of the property and a full assignment was made. The whole proceedings looked genuine but both vendor and buyer were bogus and left the Colony soon after the fraud was perpetrated. Mr. John Hastings put up $9,000 of his own money and the rest consisted of his clients' money. How much the prisoner got he could not say but from the evidence he would put before them they would see that he got $7,000. The cheques were on the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank. The mortgage was put through too late on the 9th September for the cheques to be cashed on the same day but they were cashed on the following day. On that day the defendant paid $7,000 into his account.

Mr. Alabaster—There's nothing in the depositions to show that defendant had an account at the bank. In the depositions it is stated that a woman went to the bank and was accompanied by a man who was a little shorter or taller than the defendant.

Mr. Shenton—Somebody said that he was similar to Lam Fok Chiu.

Mr. Slade—There are twenty-two witnesses and you are liable to get somewhat mixed up (laughter).

Proceeding, Mr. Slade, said that the fact of defendant's having paid $7,000 into his account was in itself nothing remarkable but it was very strong proof of bringing out the fraudulent intentions of the defendant. Defendant was closely watched by a certain party, who saw the defendant on a certain day join five other men and go to Mr. Gardiner's office. The five men afterwards proceeded to the Bank, presumably for the purpose of getting the cheques cashed. Defendant was seen to go to a medicine shop, the owner of which had since disappeared, on the same day. A broker was also seen in defendant's company, who was at present under arrest at Nambui. All the five men took rickshaws, which defendant kept in view and met the others at the Bank, where they held some conversation. When the jury considered that defendant had paid a large sum into his account they would have no doubt that he was concerned in the fraud. Besides the evidence, there was a statement by the prisoner which his friend Mr. Alabaster on certain legal grounds did not wish to have disclosed just then, but when it did come out, it would assist them greatly in coming to a conclusion.

EARL Grey, Governor-General of the Dominion of Canada, and President Taft, were present at a banquet at Albany, New York State. Both spoke of the friendly relations between Canada and the United States, and expressed the hope that those relations would always be maintained. But the subsequent conference between President Taft and Mr. W. S. Fielding, the Canadian Minister of Finance, on the tariff question was without result.

KOWLOON STREET SCAVENGING.

REPORT ON NEW SYSTEM.

The following report on the working of the new scavenging system in Kowloon, is by Dr. W. Pearce, Assistant Medical Officer of Health:—

1. Gear.—Fourteen carts have been adapted for bullock traction and of these eleven are in daily use. On the whole these carts are successful. There have been a few accidents, e.g., one shaft broke, but it was owing to the fact that there had been a flaw in it.

Several (3) of the cross trees for the bullocks' seats have broken and so they have been replaced using yacal instead of kapora. Two iron wheels have been damaged through, evidently, inexperience on the drivers' part. At first three men had not acquired the art of turning corners safely and so used to bump the carts over curbs.

2. Sweeping, etc. of streets.—On the whole this is done better than under the old system. We have sweeping engines daily to go around with each cart in the morning to help to load the carts. The S.B. pattern dust bin is heavy when full and requires two men to tip its contents into a cart. This makes the sweeping a little later than formerly.

The basket coolies have often to leave the heaps swept up by the street sweepers for half an hour or so after they have been swept up because when they have filled their baskets they have to make a journey to the nearest cart to empty their load, while the sweepers, of course, go straight on making more heaps by the road side. Occasionally these heaps are scattered by the wind after they have been once piled up.

This accounts for a lane or street looking sometimes as though it had not been very well swept.

In some streets I have noticed rubbish swept out of houses into the side channels and being thrown from verandahs after the street has been cleansed in the early morning so that in a couple of hours the street looks quite untidy again.

I have had the tenants of these streets cautioned and I expect that we shall be able to arrest offenders who continue this practice.

Removal.—This work goes on very well. The Lady Jane takes all the refuse easily. When the road to the Saigon Street dust bin is properly surfaced by the F. W. D. our carts should be able to discharge all their morning refuse there by about 9.30 a.m.

Dr. G. H. L. Fitzwilliams intimated:—I would like to note my great appreciation that this report has been typed instead of the usual report in writing. Would it not be possible in type all reports?

CANTON DAY BY DAY.

NEW GERMAN MINISTER.

[From Our Own Correspondent.]

Canton, 25th March.
On the 25th instant the new German Minister, Count von Rex, who arrived here on the 23rd instant for the purpose of seeing the city of Canton, accompanied by the German Consul at Canton, Dr. Rosler, paid an official call on H.E. Viceroy Yuan She Hsun. On the following morning at 9 o'clock, H.E. Yuan proceeded to Shamen personally to return the visit.

On the 26th instant at 6.30 p.m. the train bound up country from Shek Wai Tong narrowly escaped a serious accident; it was almost derailed when approaching Sai Nam, owing to some of the sleepers being damaged. The train negotiated the track successfully, but it is reported that by some means or another the conductor and two firemen were injured. Work was immediately commenced on the necessary repair and it was completed without delay, thus enabling trains to run as usual without interruption.

CHINAMAN RAN AWAY.
There was considerable excitement in Fook Lane lane day before yesterday when a madman became frenzied and, taking up a chopper from butcher's stall in the street, began to chase the pedestrians. It happened that two men one twenty-six years of age, passed by him, when the demented fellow attacked them with the result that both sustained serious cuts on the body. The madman was at last got under control by the police, and was sent to the Tact of Constabulary to be dealt with.

SALT MONOPOLY INQUIRY.
The Shin Hou Kuk department has received a telegram from Shanghai advising that Commissioner An On Lan, who was deputed by the Ministry of Finance to the Southern capital, is inquiring into matters connected with the new Salt Monopoly, left Shanghai on the 25th instant, and is expected to arrive here about the 30th instant.

CLAIM FOR COMPENSATION.
With reference to the collision between a fire-wood junk and the British steam launch Tai Shan on the Kowloon side some time ago, when the junk sank and one of the men on board was drowned, the Canton Self-Government Society has forwarded a petition on behalf of the junk owner to the Viceroy asking him to communicate with the British Consul-General at Canton and to request him to settle the case by the payment of compensation to the junk owner by the owners of the steam launch.

TORTURE.
It has already been reported, that the Pan Yu magistrate, Yung Shu Ki, committed a breach of the law when he resorted to torture to extort evidence from a woman some time ago. The magistrate's action has been adversely commented upon by all the local press. Complaints have also been brought to the notice of the Viceroy from various sources against the magistrate. Viceroy Yuan is greatly put out over the matter and he has ordered the Kwanchow P. to select to make investigations. It is expected that punishment will be meted out to the magistrate for his indecent action.
